About The University of Queensland

The University of Queensland has 100 years of experience in tertiary education and was independently ranked 41st in the World University Rankings, compiled by the Times Higher Education Supplement in 2009. This placed UQ among the highest ranked universities in Australia and the world. The University is also one of only three Australian members of Universitas 21 - a select international network of comprehensive, research intensive universities committed to world-best quality and practice.

UQ Business School, through its accreditation with AACSB International and EQUIS is recognised throughout America and Europe as a top-tier business school. The school is ranked among the best in Australia and its MBA program has a five-star rating from the Graduate Management Association of Australia.

UQ is home to one of Australia's oldest and most prestigious law schools that has taught many of Australia's leading lawyers, judges and politicians.

The School of Economics is the premier school in the field of economics in Queensland and has a teaching program informed by a research agenda that is highly regarded throughout the world.

UQ is also the only university in Australia to be certified by the United Nations World Tourism Organization (UNWTO) and is a member of the UNWTO Education and Science Council.
